LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR SEPARATIST YASIN MALIK

N.I.A. SOUGHT DEATH SENTENCE FOR ROLE IN EXODUS OF KASHMIRI PANDITS

File Picture of Yasin Malik who has been awarded life sentence in a terror funding case.

Yasin Malik, the founder of the proscribed Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front (JKLF) and a separatist leader was convicted by a special court in New Delhi on 25th May 2022.

He was awarded a life imprisonment sentence for his role in a terror funding case under section 17 of the UAPA. In addition to ordering the life sentence, Special Judge Praveen Singh also imposed a fine worth Rs. 10 lakh under section 120B and Rs. 10,000 under other sections of the UAPA and IPC.

However, the National Investigation Agency had sought death sentence for Malik from the court, holding him culpable for the exodus of Kashmiri Pandits from Jammu and Kashmir. Justice Singh decided to adhere to his initial decision, underlining that the facts of the case had already been deliberated on and a sentence deemed fit by the court had been pronounced.

Along with terror financing, he had pleaded guilty to spreading secessionist activities and terrorism in Kashmir in 2017, prior to his conviction by the court. According to reports, Yasin Malik can appeal against Justice Singh's decision in the Delhi High Court.

His unlawful activities spanned a detailed mechanism and structure globally to raise funds for carrying out anti-India and terrorist activities in J&K in the name of "freedom struggle." – NDTV, Live Mint, The Economic Times, Hindustan Times, AP News

27-PAGE REPORT SAYS AQIS, JeM, LeT HAVE TRAINING CAMPS IN AFGHANISTAN

File pic of Jaish-e-Mohammed head Masood Azhar with Pakistan security forces and militants

The UN Monitoring Team under the Taliban Sanctions Committee has recently released a 27-page report, which covers the period since the time of Taliban's takeover of Afghanistan in August 2021.

It reports three disturbing developments. First is the increased presence of anti-India terrorist outfits in Afghanistan after Taliban's capture of power, including Al Qaeda in Indian Subcontinent (AQIS), Jaish-e-Mohammed (JeM) and Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT). The report also raises concern over the rising outflow of narcotics from Afghanistan to the adjoining region and states that smuggling of "Afghan-origin drugs have increased significantly in the second half of 2021" - increasing by up to 50 percent.

The third major disconcerting trend is the encouragement Taliban's coming to power has "inspired terrorists around the world". It is reported that the JeM is being reorganized and is receiving patronage of the Taliban. The new head of the Afghanistan outfit is Qari Ramzan. There are eight training camps in Nangarhar, three of which are directly under Taliban control.

Regarding Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT), the report states: "The group was said to maintain three camps in Kunar and Nangarhar. Previous LeT members have included Aslam Farooqi and Ejaz Ahmad Ahangar (a.k.a. Abu Usman al-Kashmiri), both of whom joined ISIL-K".

Meanwhile, Islamic State-Khorasan (IS-K) has members of the Pakistani Taliban, Afghan Taliban, Lashkar-e-Taiba, Jammāt-ud-Dawa, the Haqqani network and the Islamic Movement of Uzbekistan. Regarding Al-Qaeda, the report says that its chief Ayman al-Zawahiri in the "eastern region from Zabul Province north towards Kunar and along the border with Pakistan". — Times of India, The Hindu

10 BLACK AMERICANS GUNNED DOWN IN BUFFALO SHOOTING

ATTACK REPORTEDLY INSPIRED BY FAR-RIGHT CONSPIRACY THEORY

On 14th May 2022, an 18-year-old teenager Payton Gendron live-streamed a mass shooting he committed in Buffalo, in the US State of New York. The area of attack was inside and around the Tops Friendly Market, which is a predominantly black neighbourhood, with Black residents being the target of attack. Gendron is reported to have used an AR-15-style rifle to carry out the act of violence.

Black fatalities rose to 10 as authorities counted the lives lost during this rampage. On the other hand, three people were also wounded during this incident. The perpetrator is believed to have driven over 320 kilometres to the site of attack. A man purchasing cupcakes for his son's birthday and an elderly lady shopping for groceries after visiting her husband in a nursing home were among the dead.

According to reports, the shooter had conducted reconnaissance of the store several times to assess the demographics of shoppers (particularly to understand when the maximum number of African-American customers would be making their way inside the store). He mapped out the interiors and all the available exits. The warning signs of his upcoming attack included a 180-page manifesto detailing his chilling beliefs that culminated in the racially-motivated attack, inspired by the Great Replacement Theory (a conspiracy theory by French author Renaud Camus that speaks of a plot to replace White population with non-Whites). It was reportedly posted on social media platform Discord before the attack, but has been removed. – BBC News, CNN News, AP News

REPUBLICANS
BLOCK BILL
ON DOMESTIC TERRORISM,
GUN REFORMS

Sen. Chris Murphy pleading for gun control reforms in the US Senate

On May 26 2022, US Senators from the Republican Party blocked a terrorism bill, which the US House of Representatives had passed earlier in response to the Buffalo shooting.

Republican Party members contended that plenty of laws already existed to fight domestic terrorism and opposed giving more power to federal law enforcement agencies.

The bill got stuck in a 47-47 vote, short of the 60 votes necessary to break a filibuster in the chamber. Senators of the Democratic Party unsuccessfully pleaded for the bill to be passed in the wake of a second mass shooting in Uvalde Texas, in which 19 children and two teachers were killed, but it seems unlikely that the bill would now become a law. — CNBC
